OPA Fixes Prices On Foodstuffs

Seventeen Major Items Are Covered By Rulings Made In Philadelphia-Pittsburgh Areas

Order Will Later Cover Other Communities of State

By the Associated Press
New maximum prices on a number of foodstuffs were in effect today in the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh metropolitan areas, and the office of Price Administration planned similar orders to be in effect soon in other communities throughout the state.

The prices, made public by OPA yesterday, covered 17 major food items in the Philadelphia area which included all Pennsylvania communities within a 20-mile radius of the city. At Pittsburgh, the order was effective in nine southwestern counties. Allegheny, Armstrong, Beaver, Butler, Fayette, Greene, Lawrence, Washington and Westmoreland.

OPA did not specify when other orders would be issued in the state, but indicated they would come soon, some of them possibly this week.

The new regulations, replacing price ceilings based on retail selling prices on specified base prices, set forth maximum amounts which retailers might charge for the foods, listing them not only by types but in many cases by specific brand names. The agency pointed out that the ceilings were maximums, and that stores bound to lower prices under the old system must retain them, with any stores selling above the specified figures compelled to drop the prices to that level.

In both districts, the list of items included bread, butter, packed cheese, sugar, cereals, milk (all types), peanut butter, canned fish, coffee. The Pittsburgh list contained additional items, and at Philadelphia on OPA spokesman said that a mixup had caused deletion of some items from the previously prepared list.

Planning Cuts In Food Prices

Washington, May 10.—(P)—The OPA cut profit margins today on grocery store sales of cabbage, onions and some poultry, and also reduced prices of salt codfish.

These were the latest steps in the avowed effort of OPA Chief Prentiss M. Brown to bring down the cost of living, the major feature of which is a plan of subsidies designed to bring on June 1 a 10 per cent cut in the retail cost of beef, veal, lamb, mutton, coffee and butter.

Today marked the effective date of community-wide price ceilings made public over the week-end in 20 metropolitan areas. These lists constitute no change in the legal cost of groceries, by themselves, except in some exceptional cases—but they provide housewives with official information in checking on the legality of prices charged by stores.

This week, too, OPA has announced plans to set new beef, veal, lamb and mutton prices on a regional basis—temporary prices pending the subsidy plan—to fix new ceilings on soap, and to list community canned goods prices.

WAGE INCREASE IS REFUSED BY WLB

Philadelphia, May 10.—(P)—Approving the report of a panel which investigated a wage dispute between management of the Wolf's Head Oil Refining Co., Inc., Oil City, Pa., and the international Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers (AFL), the regional war board today refused to grant a wage increase asked by the union but directed inclusion of a maintenance of membership clause and dues checkoff in a contract between the two parties.

Duke and Wally Arrive In New York on Shopping Spree

New York, May 10.—(P)—The governor-general of the Bahamas and his wife, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, are in town—ombining official and personal business which, they hope, will include some theatre-going. The former king and his American-born duchess arrived from Miami by train 15 minutes ahead of schedule yesterday.

TIME TURNS BACKWARD

Philadelphia, May 10.—(P)—The Society for the Detection of Horse Thieves and the Recovery of Stolen Horses has a job.

Organized more than 100 years ago, the society has done little during the last 20 years except hold annual dinners. But when three horses were stolen from a west Philadelphia riding academy, the society perked up.

Half of the society's historic obligation was discharged by police who found the horses, unharmed. A report on detection of the culprits is awaited from ex-blacksmith Luther Parsons, octogenarian president of the society.

NEW VERSION OF RUMI BILL IS UNDER WAY

Unless Hitch Develops It Will Be Reported and Debate Opened Sometime Tuesday

PREDICTING PASSAGE

BY JACK BELL
Washington, May 10.—(P)—Confident the senate will override administration objections, a working coalition of Republicans and Democrats put the finishing touches today on a new version of the Rumi skip-a-year plan of current income taxation.

Unless a hitch develops, the measure will be sent to the floor tomorrow by the senate finance committee, which approved it 10 to 7 Saturday, and debate will start either then or Wednesday. Five Democrats joined the eight Republican committee members in voting for the bill.

Even such opponents as committee Chairman George (D-Ga.) conceded likely passage of legislation embodying in some form the Rumi principle—probably late in the week. From that time on, it is considered anybody's guess as to what happens, since administration supporters in the house defeated a modified Rumi plan by a narrow margin.

The committee-revised Rumi-Carlson bill would cancel the lower of either 1942 or 1943 liabilities for (Turn to Page Seven)

Sub Blasts Jap Island

New York, May 10.—(P)—The Tokyo radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, reported today that an Allied submarine had shelled the vicinity of Horobetsu village on the southern coast of Hokkaido island—the second largest of the string of islands which constitute the Japanese homeland.

The broadcast quoted an announcement from Japanese northern army headquarters as saying the shells had landed in a field and caused no casualties or damage.

The nationality of the submarine was not given. American submarines, however, several times have been reported in operation close off the Japanese coast. One recently returned with photographs of Funiyama taken through a periscope.

The Tokyo radio said the attack took place just before midnight yesterday.

"I want to see what's in the stores. I haven't seen anything for a year," the Duchess said. "The trouble with that is, we haven't many dollars," the Duke added. He said part of his time will be taken up in discussions of the work of the Bahamas economic commission of which he is chairman. Later, he said, he plans to go to Washington.

Young Erie Air Cadet Killed In Crash of Army Bomber

Richard M. Schumacher Held Rank of Lieut. Col. In Cadet Corps

BURIAL WILL BE IN ERIE

Mrs. Robert B. Ingalls, 100 Orchard street, has been called to Erie by news that her nephew, Cadet Richard Maxwell Schumacher, had been killed in a bomber crash near Waco, Tex., Thursday night.

According to word received from Erie today, the body is being shipped home and funeral arrangements will not be completed until the arrival.

Young Schumacher, who had only two weeks more of training before receiving his wings and commission, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Schumacher, 1010 West 25th street, and grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schumacher, of Erie and Warren. His father, well known here as Max Schumacher, is a brother of Kane, formerly of Warren. It has been learned that Cadet Schumacher was killed instantly when the twin-engine training bomber he was flying crashed during a severe rain storm. Another student flyer was also killed in the accident.

The family was notified Friday by army officials that their son had failed to return from a routine cross-country flight and would be temporarily considered as missing. At 9 p. m. Friday his death was confirmed when officers reported that the wreckage of the bomber and the two bodies were located after a search of almost 24 hours.

Schumacher, graduate of Strong Vincent High School in the class of 1940 and later a student in the General Electric technical school, enlisted in the air corps on January (Turn to Page Seven)

CIO Urges Law To Spank Price Violators

Pittsburgh, May 10.—(P)—Authority for local peace officers to punish violators of OPA price ceiling regulations is being asked by congress by the Steel City Industrial Council (CIO) as a means of holding down living costs.

The union group, declaring that court delays in handling price ceiling cases have brought about rising living costs, said in a resolution the OPA "has cited many large companies with hundreds of counts of violations before the federal courts," but that "because of no convictions and a long delay in the prosecution of violators the prices continue to soar."

The council urged that any magistrate, alderman, justice of the peace or similar official be given the right to try such cases, and suggested a fine of $100 and a jail sentence of 60 days for each offense.

Germans Hear Hitler Appeal For Courage

London, May 10.—(P)—Adolf Hitler was quoted by the Berlin radio today as declaring the winter "involved the heaviest suffering and hardest burdens for our soldiers." The broadcast was recorded by Reuters.

The Berlin radio said Hitler broadcast on the occasion of the anniversary of the end of another "winter help" campaign.

By halting the Russian assault and by counter-attacking, Hitler said the German soldiers had averted a crisis "which would have broken any other army in the world."

"All sacrifices on the home front pale before the privations and sufferings which our soldiers have had to bear for the second time in the east. Only love of their country and a desire that it shall be spared the horrors of war could have made such deeds possible."

"The home front has also learned the courage," Hitler declared. "War has been brought to the towns, townships and villages."

Child Is Killed In Crash of Car Into Pole

Granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Johnson Victim of Skidding Automobile

NEAR BATAVIA, N. Y.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McConnell, 86 North End avenue, Kenmore, N. Y., formerly of Warren, were deeply grieved over the weekend to learn of the automobile accident on Friday which claimed the life of their twin daughter, Mary, aged five years.

The accident took place about 9:30 p. m. Friday at New Penbrook, near Batavia, N. Y., when Mr. McConnell lost control of his car on a curve. The machine skidded across the highway, struck a telephone pole and overturned.

At the Batavia Hospital, where the little girl died on Saturday morning, it was learned she had suffered a skull fracture. Mr. and Mrs. McConnell suffered cuts and bruises about the face. Mary's twin, David, and a small baby, Helen Ann, escaped any injury, although the latter was thrown through the windshield by the impact with the telephone pole.

Little Mary was born here March 27, 1938 and was the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Johnson, Jefferson avenue, this city, and of Mr. and Mrs. David McConnell, of Sewickley. Her parents moved to Kenmore three years ago in September.

Mr. McConnell and son were discharged from the hospital at Batavia yesterday and the others expected to go home today, to be joined (Turn to Page Seven)

FLIER'S SCORE NUMBERS TEN JAP ZERO PLANES

Somewhere in New Guinea, May 8. (Delayed)—(P)—The battle score of Capt. Thomas J. Lynch, Catasagua, Pa., aerial ace, climbed to 10 enemy planes today.

Lynch, flying a O-38 Lightning fighter, was covering an attack by Allied bombers on the Jap-held port of Madang when the enemy plane appeared.

"We first saw this Zero flying along just behind one formation of B25's and just ahead of another but too far away for either formation to shoot at him," Lynch said.

"He pulled up and started for home but I caught him about 1,000 feet above the water. The fight was brief."

"He turned and came at me head-on when I got him. He began to smoke and dived straight into the water."

GOV. MARTIN CAN SUSPEND STATE LAWS

Legislature Gives Authority to Meet Almost Any Situation Impeding War Effort

LONG FINAL SESSION

BY MARTIN H. BRACKBILL
Harrisburg, May 10.—(P)—Broad powers to suspend laws and promulgate rules to strengthen Pennsylvania's home front were held by Governor Martin as members of the 1943 general assembly turned to their ordinary pursuits.

Passage of legislation giving the state defense council authority to co-operate with federal agencies in controlling black markets, protecting war plants, railroads and utilities, enforcing rationing and other war measures rounded out the administration war program before adjournment of the legislature at dawn yesterday.

Previously the assembly gave the chief executive authority to set aside state laws impeding the war program at the request of Washington but only after consulting with a special legislative committee composed of the officers and leaders of both branches.

"The two bills give the commonwealth power to meet almost any conceivable situation," declared Republican senate leader, Weldon M. Heyburn in an interview. The governor listed among the session's important legislation "the war powers act and the strengthening of civilian defense laws to control black markets and to make necessary rationing more effective."

The legislature in the final hours also approved major bills that would:

1. Prohibit labor unions and other unincorporated associations from making political contributions.

2. Transfer 371 inheritance tax workers from Democratic Auditor General F. Clair Ross' office to the Republican revenue department.

3. Require municipal authorities, organizing to operate utilities, to obtain local government and public utility commission approval of purchase plans.

LEGION HEAD MAY SUSPEND POST MEMBER

Com. Warning Cites South Fork Post as Setting Lewis' Interests Before Country

MINCES NO WORDS

Memphis, May 10.—(P)—Suggesting its members might be "unworthy to remain members of the American Legion," National Commander Eugene Waring has asked an "immediate investigation" of a resolution adopted by the Legion's South Fork (Pa.) Post, 653, criticizing him for his denunciations of John L. Lewis.

In a telegram to Daniel C. Hartbauer, of Pittsburgh, Legion commander in Pennsylvania, Waring said:

"If upon investigation it is found that the membership of this post have strayed so far from the Legion's conception of patriotism and Americanism as to put the interests of Lewis ahead of the interests of their country at war, they are not fit to remain members of the American Legion and steps should be taken immediately to remove them."

Waring's telegram quoted the resolution passed by the post at Johnstown:

Japs Given Battering By U. S. Bombers

By the Associated Press

The Tokyo radio reported today that the war had been carried directly to the islands of Japan with the shelling of a village on the island of Hokkaido by a submarine. The Japanese broadcast said the shells from the submarine, presumably American, missed their mark and landed in a field just before midnight yesterday.

In Burma Japanese jungle troops scored new successes.

American four-engine bombers, making their second big raid from China in a few days, devastated Canton, biggest Japanese air base in China south of Formosa on Saturday.

Forty tons of bombs were dropped on Tien Ho air base and at least 13, perhaps 18, enemy planes were shot down in battle, dispatches reported.

Three battered Japanese destroyers emerged from an encounter with other American bombers near Gizo Island in the middle Solomons, the navy reported yesterday. A 1,000-pound bomb hit one of the destroyers and other half-ton hits on two others were claimed.

Reds Sweep Novorossisk and Rain Death on Hitler's Elite Troops--Many Small Craft Loaded With Hun Soldiers Sunk as They Fled Africa--Many High German Officers Are Taken

PALERMO BLASTED BY HUNDREDS OF PLANES

By CARL C. CRANMER
Associated Press War Editor

The war in Tunisia appeared to be all but finished and a new phase of the world conflict—the invasion of Europe—seemed imminent today as the Allied steamroller continued to flatten out the remnants of Adolf Hitler's hot-house trained African Corps and its Italian allies on the Tunisian battleground.

While the Algiers radio reported that Axis prisoners in Tunisia had mounted to 64,000 and the dead and wounded to 42,000, the German-controlled Paris radio admitted that "the battle for Tunisia is nearing an end."

North African dispatches said aerial squadrons had sunk innumerable small craft loaded with panic-stricken Axis troops trying to get away from Tunisia.

From Norway to the Balkans the forced labor corps of Hitler were being driven to feverish building of fortifications, as unprecedented Allied air blows in the Mediterranean and on the Russian front emphasized the threat to the European fortress.

Here were a few of the day's headlines from the world war:

Russia—The Red army penetrated the outer fortifications of the Black Sea naval base of Novorossisk and Soviet aircraft delivered their most formidable series of attacks yet on the enemy's rearward communication centers.

Pacific—The war was carried directly to the Japanese islands, the Tokyo radio reported, when a submarine, presumably American, shelled a village on Hokkaido island.

China—United States four-engine bombers made their second big attack from Chinese bases on Saturday, devastating the air base at Canton, the biggest enemy airfield in China south of Formosa.

Allied headquarters announced that all organized resistance collapsed in the Axis pocket between Bizerte and Tunis yesterday, and that the British, American and French Allies had exacted their first "unconditional surrender" of the war from a large body of enemy troops.

In the bag of 25,000 prisoners taken in this sector alone were six generals, including four German divisional commanders and remnants of crack armored divisions of the African corps which Hitler had trained in superheated armories in Germany for their African task.

Strong resistance continued to be offered by the enemy at the entrance to Cap Bon Peninsula southeast of Tunis, but the commander said Allied destroyers and light naval forces had this gangplank into the sea closely blockaded and under fire from their guns.

No organized attempt at an evacuation of the Dunkerque type had yet been detected, an official Allied announcement said last night, and the German air force apparently had quit the fight.

On the other hand American Flying Fortresses, medium bombers and fighters—400 of them—made the greatest aerial onslaught of the Mediterranean war on Palermo, the most important enemy base in Sicily, wrapping that port in a pall of smoke which defied reconnaissance photographers for hours.

This raid, which appeared to be part of the softening up process for invasion, rather than to knock out a supply port or destroy an evacuation fleet, was supplemented by another heavy American attack with four-engine planes on Messina, Sicily, in which ferry ships, ferries, a locomotive round (Turn to Page Seven)

Unconditional Surrender Is Only Term Given Germans

BY EDWARD KENNEDY
Allied Headquarters in North Africa, May 10.—(P)—Naval and air forces threw a blockade around Cap Bon peninsula and sank many small ships carrying Axis soldiers desperately attempting to escape the Tunisian inferno today.

German resistance stiffened in front of British armor smashing against the entrance to Cap Bon peninsula. The position of Axis troops still fighting in Tunisia was described (Turn to Page Seven)

Farm Hands Needed Now To Raise Food

Warren county's farm labor situation is one that is daily growing more critical and never in the history of the county has there been such a demand. The backward weather has prevented farm owners from doing much of the preparatory spring work and when the weather settles there will be a rush of work that will be too much for the average farmer. At the office of the U. S. Employment Service demands are made daily and many of these cannot be filled. Demands for married men on farms can be taken care of fairly well as the pay is fair, a house is usually furnished, some of the foodstuffs and milk.

On the other hand single men for farms are few. It has been suggested that the men who have been reclassified as 4-F go to work on the farms as a patriotic gesture. Their work on the farms is just as important as being in the armed forces. Assured of room and board and fair wages the farm work is the basis of the home front's strength.

Patriotic and healthy work on the farms is needed. The Employment Service Office is open until 9 every Tuesday evening and men interested in getting out and answering this patriotic appeal are urged to call.

Police Plan Roundup of Stray Canines

Borough officials today issued warning that Tuesday morning at eight o'clock the police car, manned by two officers, will start on tours of the town to pick up all dogs running loose. The canines will be taken to the municipal building where owners may recover them upon payment of $2.00 provided the dogs have been licensed. All dogs not claimed within three days after being picked up will be put to death.

Chief of Police George Haehn stated that there will be no exceptions in this effort to rid the town of dogs which are doing so much damage at present to lawns and war gardens.

No further warning will be issued and dog owners who value their pets sufficiently to keep them from being put to death must keep them on their own premises.

HAD TWO RUNS

Firemen over the weekend had two runs. One was to a residence No. 10 Water street where Albert Webster had left a toaster turned on. It overheated and set clothing ablaze. Plenty of smoke caused a box alarm to be turned in and the firemen turned out much apparatus. The loss was small. A second run came Saturday evening when a Morris chair in the apartment of A. D. Cobb, 232 Pennsylvania avenue, west was burning. It was tossed out a window.

"Sorry I can't take you to lunch," Powell said, helping her into her coat, "but I've got an appointment with Judd Chaemer. Had it for over a week. Wouldn't dare break it. He's too important."

"That's all right," said Penny faintly.

He kissed her. "Run along now and have a good hot meal. You'll feel better, sweetheart."

Everyone else had gone by the time Penny reached the elevators. Everyone but Cleve Rockwell. Gratefully she realized he'd been waiting for her.

"Got a luncheon date?" Penny shook her head.

"Well, now you have," Cleve tucked her arm through his.

Going down to the street, Penny stole a wondering glance at Cleve's darkly tanned face. His eyes weren't teasing now—they were grave. His lips weren't crooked with their usual devil-may-care mockery. This was a new Cleve, considerate and gentle. A Cleve she'd never seen before. She felt all at once a little shy with him, as with a stranger—yet comforted, too, about Bill.

They ate in a cozy little place with gay tablecloths and waitresses in bright peasant costumes. There was music to match. Penny felt her strain diminishing. She could even enjoy the excellent food a little.

FINISHED. Cleve sat back across the table from her and lit a cigarette. He regarded her through wreathing smoke.

"You know, tot, I think you're growing up some."

Tot! Penny froze.

"Could be," she said coolly. "At least, that's the impression that seems to be getting around."

Impulsively, he leaned forward. "No, I mean it. You're turning out to be rather lovely." He reached a lean brown hand across to take her small soft finger.

Caught off guard, Penny's heart stirred, began to thump. So Cleve Rockwell was beginning to wake up at last, after all these years. Now, when it was too late. Now, when there was Powell. Penny told herself she'd better withdraw her hand. But somehow it was pleasanter to let it linger there just for a little while.

Cleve grinned. "Yes, Bill and I better kind of keep an eye on you. In spite of the war, there are still a few guys drifting around that might go getting notions about you."

Penny snatched her hand away. "Well, why not?"

He stared. "You're not serious?"

"I am," said Penny, "and so is Powell Ward—very."

"Powell?" Cleve began to laugh incredulously. "You don't mean you've gone and got a crush on the boss, tot?"

"We're engaged," said Penny icily. "He's having the ring made to order. Star sapphire and diamonds."

The laughter died out of Cleve. He changed color. It was Penny told herself, a real triumph. Now maybe he'd have to treat her with more respect. She'd be the boss's wife.

"Good lord," said Cleve finally. Then: "I don't think Bill will like it." He blew out smoke explosively.

"Why not?" demanded Penny defensively.

HIS harsh laughter cut through the room. "If you don't know, far be it from me to tell you."

The old Cleve was back again, only more remote and detached than he'd ever been before. Suddenly Penny didn't feel triumphant any more. Just how she did not quite happy. But probably that was because of Bill. Yes, that must be it. She'd never feel herself again until she'd seen her brother safe and sound.

Two days later, a telegram came from Hudson's Hope. It was signed Constable Rennick, R.C.M.P. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police man had found the camera and was expressing it to the New York office of Spot News Pictures. No word of Bill.

When it arrived, a full ten days later, Powell Ward was elated.

"Now!" he said, and opened it. Penny Vance, leaning over the desk beside him, drew her breath in sharply. Powell Ward pushed the camera from him violently, and swore.

There was no film in it.

Chapter 3

POWELL WARD got up and paced the office. His face was pink with exasperation. He came back and pounded his shining desk so hard the jade Chinese paper weight bounced. He glowered at it.

"What I want to know is—where the devil are those films?" Penny would have liked to know that, too. It was queer. Yet the information she really wanted most was about Bill. Nearly two weeks had dragged by since the news of his plane crash, and the only word that had come was from the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Nothing from Bill himself. She looked at the battered camera. When had Bill's hands touched it last? Memories of her brother, his intent blue eyes squinting for new picture angles, his perpetually ruffled blond hair, his loose-jointed walk, crowded Penny's mind.

The door opened. Cleve Rockwell came through.

"You sent for me?"

"Did I?" said Powell Ward. "Why?"

Cleve shrugged, flicked the ashes of the cigarette he was smoking on the manager's prize oriental rug, and approached the desk, eyes narrowing.

"Bill Vance's camera," he said. "I'd know it anywhere. Bill loved it better than his right arm. Where're the films?"

"No films," said Penny. "Cleve's gaze noted her briefly, then passed to Powell Ward.

"How come?"

THE manager exploded. "How do I know? The camera arrives. We open it. Nothing there."

Cleve thought about that. His eyes smoldered. His jaws hardened.

"There begins to be a peculiar odor about this whole affair," he said grimly.

Both Penny and Powell Ward stared at him. The manager's phone rang.

"Take it," Powell told Penny.

Penny lifted the receiver. Words burned into her ears.

"Yes—yes," she said excitedly. "Bring it right in! She returned the phone shakily. "It's a letter postmarked Hudson's Hope. Maybe from Bill!"

"Doggone!" said Cleve. "Good old Bill. Wrote as soon as he could."

But it wasn't Bill Vance's handwriting on the envelope. With heart sinking, Penny noticed that at once. It was a queer, flattened, unfamiliar scrawl in pale ink. Barely legible. The envelope was yellow with age, rain-spotted and dirty. The Canadian stamp was askew.

The three of them gathered around the torn single sheet of ruled paper inside, puzzled over the slanting words.

"I rite for Mister Bill Vance," Penny read slowly. "He sick here in my shack. He say to tell boss ne tak close pitcher and truck shots of big Canada and U. S. chiefs on Alcan Highway. Be sure get films. Liv to Penny. Tell her not worry. Pierre le Frene."

Powell grunted, snatched the sheet of paper.

"I knew it!" he said. "Those films of Bill's are very valuable. Close-ups and trucking-shots of high officials on inspection. Trust Bill!"

Cleve nodded. "Sure—he got 'em all right. Bill never misses." "But where the devil are they?" demanded Powell. He ran his fingers through his smoothly brushed blond hair, then distraughtly felt for a comb to repair the damage.

"But more important," said Cleve, "where's poor Bill?"

POWELL WARD looked surprised. "What do you mean, where's Bill?" He tapped the letter. "He's up there in this half-breed's shack. It says so right here."

"But where's the shack?"

"Why?" Powell Ward looked annoyed, flipped over the envelope. "Why—at Hudson's Hope. That's the postmark here."

Cleve said: "The shack might be fifty, a hundred, or more miles away." He stood up, plunging hands deep in pockets. "Pierre le Frene's shack doesn't sound to me like the ideal place to recuperate from a plane crash."

That was just what Penny had been thinking. Bill, too banged up even to write a letter, alone with a half-breed mules from civilization in the far north. How had he reached Pierre le Frene's shack? How long had he lain there? What condition? He had sent her his love, told her not to worry. But he asked the impossible of her. Not knowing was agony.

Penny stood up blindly.

Powell said, "We've got to get hold of those films. Got to!"

"Put someone else on that Greenland assignment, Ward. I'll go up to Hudson's Hope for you."

"But—"

"With Bill laid up, you ought to have another photographer up there to get shots, in case his film can't be located. I can pinch-hit."

Powell Ward said thoughtfully. "All right, I'll take you along."

Both Penny and Cleve looked astonished.

"You mean you're going up yourself?" demanded Cleve.

"CERTAINLY," said Powell. "Ward, I'd come to that decision, even before you—ah—suggested going. It's the only thing to do. I'll make a thorough investigation, with the help of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. I'll get to the bottom of the disappearance of those films, and bring them back—"

"And Bill," said Cleve.

"Bill, too, of course."

Penny cried, "I'm going, too!"

"But darling," said Powell Ward tolerantly, "that's out of the question."

"Absolutely," said Cleve, patting her shoulder in a soothing, brotherly fashion. "That's rough country up there, no place for you, tot. Bill wouldn't—"

"If you think for one moment I'm going to stay here, when I could be up there looking after Bill, you're both crazy!" said Penny. "I tell you I'm going. Powell, you've got to let me. If you don't I'll break our engagement!"

Powell Ward looked helplessly into her determined gray eyes, and gave in.

MAGNIFICENT VICTORY

(By DeWitt MacKenzie, War Analyst for the Associated Press and the Times-Mirror)

So at long last the Allies have reclaimed the North African shore of the Mediterranean, thereby achieving one of the most magnificent victories the war could offer, for this theater is among the ranking strategic positions of the whole world.

To be sure, there still remains mopping up to do in Tunisia. Weary, shell-shocked German and Italian soldiers—many of their officers having fled to the continent—are holding out in some of the mountain fortifications. Details are lacking, but it's likely that a considerable force may be out on the tip of Cap Bon, hoping against hope that an unfriendly sea will relent and bring them evacuation facilities.

Still, what's left to be done, can be done handily. The day is ours.

This throws Hitler the world-beater back behind the crumbling walls of Europe which he has all but wrecked. The paranoic genius of death and destruction finally is on the defensive, with the enemy pressing him on all sides.

With the all highest's retreat goes Mussolini's empire, for which Il Duce sacrificed his honor and stabbed a wounded neighbor in the back. With it, too, goes the Italian dictator's outlying defenses against invasion. The bull of Bashan which roared so terrifyingly from the security of Rome now turns out to be a sea-cow which sprawls more or less helpless, waiting for the kill.

The Tunisian victory represents perfect Allied military coordination and timing. That speaks well for the future. It speaks doubly well in that this coordination couldn't have existed without the most friendly cooperation among the Allies in this bloody engagement—the British, the French and the Americans.

The great Rommel and his veteran Afriker Korps, along with the seasoned forces of Nazi General von Arnim, have literally been squeezed into submission. The Allies have maintained a fierce pressure along that mountain front of 120 miles—a feat calling for vast skill and endurance.

Day after day the Allies have hammered at that line in vital sectors, never giving the enemy a moment's rest. Outnumbered in men and equipment, the Axis has had to defend itself at all points without even a breather.

The Allied command has operated its attacking machine like a precision instrument. The whole long line has been so delicately maneuvered that the coordination has been perfect.

So has the timing. Crucial attacks were supported by application of pressure in adjoining sectors. And when the Americans and British finally pushed to seize the great plums of the victory—Bizerte for the Yanks; Tunis for the John Bulls—they were less than an hour and a half apart.

That's a tribute to the high command and to all the officers and non-coms who carried out the orders. It's a tribute to the grand fighting men who made it possible for the orders to be executed. In short, we're talking about a great army.

Some of the enemy undoubtedly have escaped in small boats—probably mostly officers. As for the rest, it was death or surrender for most of them. A large-scale escape by water was impossible. The sea swarmed with Allied naval ships, and the sky was dark with American and British planes.

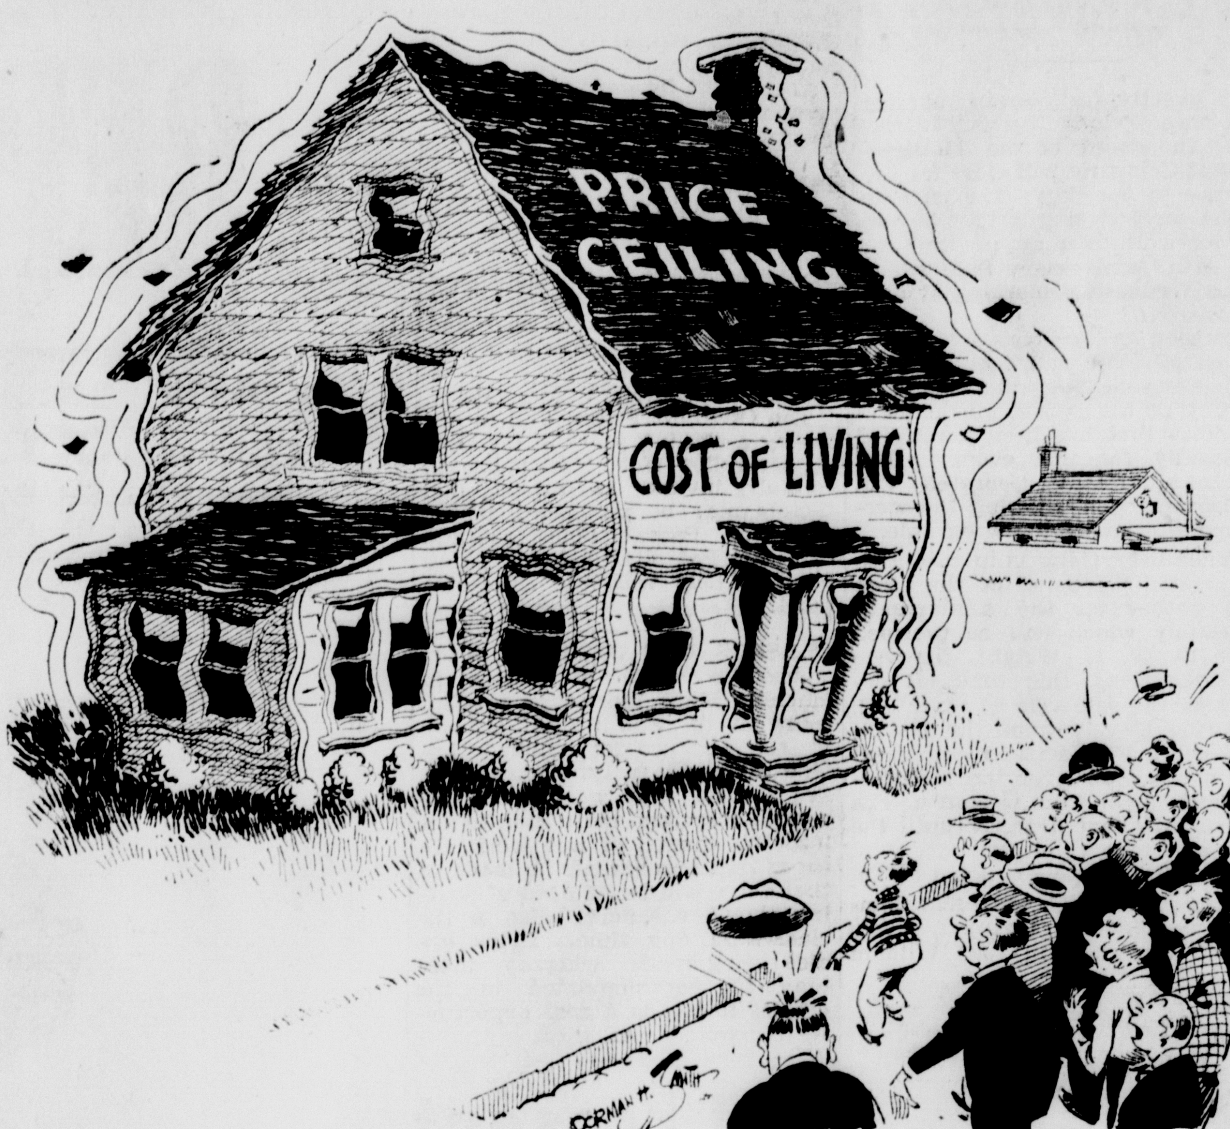

PATRIOTIC PERCENTAGES

While Warren borough and all districts in the county are lauding the fact that the area went over the top in the Second War Loan drive, many districts report recent lag, or at least a disinclination to increase the number of bonds being purchased. And realistic people are beginning to insist that ten per cent investment in such securities is not enough. A man whose son was recently killed in action says: "It was tough to lose that boy, but it would be a lot tougher to lose the war."

Another is more outspoken. "When I head people ragging about putting 10 per cent of their income in bonds," he says, "It makes me tired. That kind of patriotism won't be enough to win this war or any modern war. If we think we can settle it for 10 per cent we might as well get ready to let Hitler take the other 90 per cent away from us."

There isn't much left to spend money for anyway, and the supply of luxuries and even necessities grows readily less. There are a number of people who could up to 15 or 20 per cent increases. That is the way to win the war and keep the currency sound, and have stake left when the war is over.

The Mystery House on 'Our' Street

Washington in Wartime

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Congressmen and government officials are convinced that the lid will blow off the black market story any minute now.

It probably will come as soon as Congress is comfortably settled after the Easter "vacation" and has had an opportunity to commune with itself on whether conditions are as bad throughout the rest of the United States as they are in Washington.

Meatleggers, javaleggers, gasleggers, spudleggers and the rest are almost as common here as bootleggers were in any metropolitan center in the prohibition era.

My own simple investigations here have disclosed:

(1) A congressman was approached by a furtive stranger in the halls of his apartment building and offered one pound of coffee for $125. I could use names and places except that the Congressman bought it, established connections with this javalegger and has turned in his name to OPA investigators.

(2) A former well-to-do produce man is keeping office hours only in the mornings and driving a taxi in the afternoons and evenings. (Out of the latter he makes about $250 a month.) "It was either get into the black market game or get out of business," he said, "and I have two boys in the army." He told of one of his customers, owner of three groceries, who was screaming for white potatoes. When the produce dealer told him he couldn't get potatoes at any price, the groceryman said, all right, he would go to the black market. "I can get all I want there and I've got hundreds of customers who will buy them at five pounds for $1." (For a month Washington has received only one fifth its normal needs of white potatoes, receipts averaging only one car a day.)

(3) That the liquor black market has become so serious that Rep. Andrew J. May, of Kentucky, demanded the OPA crack down. The OPA has promised to do so, but off the record, some officials assert there isn't manpower enough in the investigation division to pay attention to the small-time black market operators. Because that condition exists in other products, as well as in liquor, the small-time black market is flourishing unpunished throughout the country as well as in the District of Columbia.

(4) That one out of every five auto drivers has little black market books with the names and telephone numbers of galeggers. The telephone numbers are not used to call for deliveries, as in the days of bootlegging, but to find out if the dealers have any gas on hand before wasting what is in the tank by making the run to the filling station or garage where it is sold.

(5) That the black market in meat, for a time the most flourishing of all, has struck a snag in spoilage. So many butchers have been stung, and so many consumers have been caught the same way or made ill by overpriced and uninspected meats, that both public and dealers are beginning to shy away. Just why this white light of publicity has not been turned on black market operations in this country to a greater extent is a mystery. It's true that responsible officials are reluctant to advertise their inability to cope with the situation, but it also is true that if the public were really aroused to the magnitude of this "flagrant and inexcusable violation of the anti-inflation program," as Mr. May calls it, we might move a long way toward stamping it out.

What It Means

By JOHN GROVER

WASHINGTON — Satisfaction over recent military successes of the United Nations has been dulled by grave concern over politico-diplomatic developments in the family of Allied powers.

No responsible official attempts to minimize the seriousness of the Russo-Polish breach. The British Foreign Office and the U. S. State Department alike voiced regret publicly.

The comment of the U. S. State Department deserves close scrutiny. Significantly, it concluded its note of regret "without reference to the merits in the matter of differences between these two governments, and without knowing as yet the full facts."

That statement spotlights the patchwork fabrication of the United Nations edifice. Liaison between the major Allied powers is so tenuous that it admits ignorance of the "full facts" in a matter that undermines the solid front the Allies present to the authoritarian powers.

Serious Rift

For some time, thoughtful groups have urged a central council of the United Nations, to replace the relatively haphazard intercommunication which has caused friction in the past. The Russo-Polish rift is the most serious in a long line of frictions and may furnish the impetus for formation of a central agency representing all the Allied powers.

Every dispute within the family of the United Nations reflects discredit on the whole group and does the common cause much harm. Axis propagandists make potent capital of these family rows. They do threefold damage:

(1) to our prestige among the neutrals, such as Turkey and Sweden, which may one day come in as allies; (2) to the underground in conquered countries, whose members are disheartened by dissension; (3) to the united war effort in the separate member countries of the United Nations, as the civil populations "take sides" in greater or less degree with the disputants.

The combined chiefs of staff of the Allied armies have a central organization in Washington. Their concerns are military. Even in this limited field there has not been complete accord, as witness the withdrawal of the Chinese military mission chief for alleged failure to be granted full consultative status.

There are other evidences of friction. Australia has protested the aid allotted to the Pacific area. Britain was on thin ice in the Indian crisis. De Gaulle and Giraud have reached a French accord. The Czechs cold-shouldered recent Polish overtures.

Need Forum

The break in Russo-Polish diplomatic relations, accompanied by bitter recriminations, goes farther than previous chronic symptoms of Allied failure to reach over-all unity.

The merits of the dispute are of secondary import in the minds of the neutrals here. The primary significance of the controversy is that it was ever allowed to develop, to endanger the whole United Nations structure.

Such disputes will develop until there is a formal United Nations forum for settlement of intra-family claims. Such a central council could iron out differences before they erupt into a public washing of dirty linen that benefits no one but the Axis.

SUGAR GROVE

Sugar Limit For Canning Announced

Washington, May 10—(P)—The office of price administration today fixed a top limit of 25 pounds of sugar per person for home canning and freezing of this year's fruit crop.

Except for the specific maximum, sugar for home canning will be allocated on substantially the same basis as last year—one pound of sugar for each four quarts (or eight pounds) of the finished product.

With the 25 pound limit, any family may apply for sugar to put up jams, jellies, and preserves at the rate of five pounds per person.

Beginning May 15, rationing boards throughout the country will begin receiving applications under the new regulation. No special form is required, unless it is planned to sell the home product, and applications may be made in person or by mail.

Each applicant must furnish a copy of war ration book No. 1 for each person for whom home-canning sugar is sought, the total number of pounds to be put up, and the amount of sugar to be used for making jams and jellies.

Home canners may make gifts of both fruits and vegetables, but no person may give away more than 50 quarts. Any gifts in excess of that amount and all sales can be made only by the collection of blue stamps at the rate of 8 points per quart.

YMCA Annual Meet Will Be Held Tuesday

Y.M.C.A. members of the Senior Department are invited and urged to participate in the annual election of directors and the annual meeting of the association both to be conducted at the "Y" building tomorrow.

The polls will be open for balloting from 12 noon until 7:30 p. m., and a good turn-out of the voters is very much desired. Four places on the board of directors are to be filled, with the following nominees on the ticket: Herbert G. Eaton, Maurice R. Emery, Harold S. Hampson, Hilmar A. Roos, Warren M. Stone and Clarence O. Swanson.

Those who plan to attend the meeting may cast their ballots just before going into the meeting, provided they arrive before the meeting has been convened. This annual meeting scheduled for 7:30 p. m. has added importance in that it will also serve as a constitutional convention for the consideration and adoption of a new constitution for the association. A good representative attendance of members is needed for proper consideration of this important document.

Following the annual meeting the regular monthly meeting of the board of directors will be held. Newly elected directors will take office at the June meeting of the board.

Mushball Is Being Enjoyed By Many Boys

Tuesday evening saw the start of the current season of mushball for the Y. M. C. A. Boys' Dept. The Beaty Jr. Hi-Y Club, a group of boys from the 7th grade in Beaty, started the ball rolling with a close game between two of their own teams. The team captained by Mitch' Dickerson of Glade, carried off the contest by a score of 27 to 15, in a seven inning session. The opposing team, captained by 'Rabbit' Swanson, former East St. flash, held them down to a near tie until the last inning, when Dickerson's squad piled up their long lead. This was a warm-up for the club and more games will follow, not only in their own league, but with other 'Y' clubs.

The Gra-Y League got its start on Wednesday evening on Beaty Field at 4 o'clock. A strong team downed a fighting South St. team by the score of 38 to 10. It was Lucy all the way, but South St. showed some good material which needs more organization. The league will continue next week with a game between South and McClintock on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock on Beaty Field.

The boys from the North Warren Jr. Hi-Y Club journeyed to Beaty Field on Thursday evening to have a practice session with the Doolittle Jr. Hi-Y Club from Beaty School. After an hour's practice, the boys set to for a little competition, which proved to be a neck and neck five inning race, with the winner in a last minute spurt by the score of 9 to 7.

More of these games will be a regular club feature, with a league going all summer. At least that's the hope for the present.

Abbott, of Sugar Grove, and Miss Doris Engstrom and Mrs. Ralph Beedle of Chlanders Valley.

The bonds sold by this group amounted to about eight thousand dollars. This does not include the bonds sold in the schools and at the bank.

Mrs. Scott Stuart, Jr., entertained the Valley Grove Club, at her home Thursday evening. Miss Anna Oberg, Jamestown, sister of the hostess was an out of town guest.

The women who conducted the bond drive in this community were Mrs. James Pelton captain, Mrs. Frank Conklin, Miss Mary Manilton, Mrs. Neil Scott, Mrs. Eli Martin, Mrs. Burt Schoenover, Mrs. Conrad Youngburg, Mrs. Donald

HILDA M. GLANS
Hilda M. Glans, 117 Fernway Road, Shaker Heights, O., passed away in St. Luke's Hospital in Cleveland on Friday. She was born in Sweden March 1, 1887. Surviving is a brother, Carl Glans,

“What else can I do to help?”...

Of course, you are helping now! Buying War Bonds, working for the Red Cross, giving time to Civilian Defense. But there are other ways you can help — right in your daily homemaking routine. Below, your Gas Company suggests three that are vitally important:

SAVE FOOD

Roast meats at low temperature in your Gas oven to reduce shrinkage. Use left-overs in stews, hash, meat pies.

SAVE GAS

Plant a victory garden and preserve your surplus. Put up as many fruits and berries as possible. Your Gas range makes canning easy. Cook only the amount of vegetables needed. Serve left-overs creamed, in casserole dishes, or cold — in salads. Cook vegetables and fruits in their skins whenever possible — and over a low Gas flame. Keep the burners clean. With just a little care your Gas range will give good, dependable service for many years — there are no fragile parts to wear out.

SAVE VITAMINS

Cook vegetables in as small an amount of boiling water as possible. The flexible Gas flame will give you the exact degree of heat you need. Cover vegetables and bring to boil quickly over full Gas flame then turn flame low, cook gently. Do not use soda in cooking green vegetables. It destroys vitamins. Cook vegetables shortest possible time. Store fresh vegetables in hydrator of your Gas refrigerator to help preserve perishable vitamins.

... it's as important as bullets.

... it's needed to make tanks and guns.

WE'LL BE GLAD TO HELP YOU with specific information on how to cook and process food for wartime meals.

GAS is vital to war production... use it wisely!

Extra-Base Hits Rattle Off Fence Again When Bean Bags Are Discarded By Big Leagues

BY JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The connection may not be clear, but the lively ball and lively arguments returned to the major league together.

For some reason the boisterous boys who usually are stormier than the North Atlantic have been drably docile this spring. The ballata ball has been blamed for everything else and it might as well be held responsible for this, too.

At any rate, when the two big leagues quit playing with bean bags this weekend and the extra-base hits started rattling off the fences, the noise aroused the dragons of the dugouts.

Manager Leo Durocher of the Brooklyn Dodgers got into an argument with Umpire Babe Pinelli in Boston, was ejected from Saturday's game and was fined $75. The same day Manager Mel Ott of the Giants was bounced at Philadelphia and Coach Art Fletcher of the New York Yankees was tossed out by an umpire for the third time in his 17 years in the big show.

Sunday Manager Frank Frisch of the Pittsburgh Pirates and most of his players joined in a tirade against Umpire Jacob Jocco Conlan and fans at Forbes Field threw bottles and cushions on the field in protest of a decision at the plate. And in Washington two players, Ellis Clary of the Senators and Catcher Johnny Peacock of the Boston Red Sox, came to blows.

These antics weren't able to steal the show, however, from the revitalized ballata ball, which was introduced in the National League on Saturday and in the American League on Sunday. The 147,000 fans who turned out for the eight doubleheaders on the Sabbath seemed well satisfied. In 16 games there was not a single shutout and in the American League, the sluggers' paradise which had produced only nine home runs before Sunday, came up with six in one day.

Three of them were made by the Yankees in beating the Philadelphia Athletics 13-1 in the first game. Spud Chandler, in addition to pitching eight-hit ball for his third victory without a defeat, homered inside the park with two on. The A's won the second game, though, 4-3.

Washington beat the Red Sox twice, 3-2 in ten innings and 8-2. The scrap between Clary and Peacock occurred in the seventh inning of the first game while Clary was at bat. Both were banished. Alex Carrasquel, the big Venezuelan, ignored a tattoo of 11 hits in the second session to last the route and gain his fourth victory without a setback.

PFC. Willard W. Cartwright of Tulsa was race in which trainees at Tarrant Field, Tex., ran 60 yards, donned gas masks and returned to starting point.

Private Cartwright's time is 38.9 seconds.

ST. JOSEPH'S CLUB WINNER OVER PIRATES

The St. Joseph Jr. Boys' Club playing against the best team in Warren for some time, yesterday handed the Warren Pirates their first defeat in two years, 13-11 in ten innings.

"Whitney" Weidert pitched for the Clubbers and allowed only eight hits, but six misplays helped the Pirates to their eleven runs. Seaman and Weaver pitched for the Pirates and let the Clubbers have 13 runs on 16 hits. The box score:

K of C Bowlers Held Banquet On Saturday

The Knights of Columbus bowling season for 1943 came to a successful conclusion Saturday evening when the members enjoyed their annual banquet and distribution of prize money.

The event was held in the hall of Warren Council's clubrooms which had been tastefully arranged for the occasion, and at the appointed hour, six o'clock, every bowler with one exception, was at his place to partake of the delectable menu. Besides the members of the four teams, Rev. Fathers M. E. Bailey, Salvatore Mitchell, Alfred Bauer and Arnold Walters, and Thad Lawson, owner of the Arcade Alley, were in attendance.

Following the banquet, President Dr. J. D. Giunta introduced and turned the meeting over to the toastmaster, H. R. Henderson, who called upon Fathers Bauer and Arnold and each congratulated the knights upon the successful bowling season and even predicted better things to come when the season opens next fall.

The next order of business was the election of officers for the season of 1943-44, which resulted as follows: President, Dr. J. D. Giunta; secretary, H. R. Henderson; and treasurer, J. A. Sealise.

Treasurer Samuel Gerardi presented the prize money to the different teams and individuals. President Giunta gave out some interesting statistics and the happy crowd then adjourned to the clubrooms for an evening of enjoyment to end a pleasant evening.

PENN CENTER READY FOR A BIG TURNOUT

The Warren-merchant-sponsored bowling contest being held at the Penn Bowling Center this week has all indications of drawing a record crowd for participation in the kegging events and Wednesday marks the day it swings into action.

The Moose club has entered a team for first try at the prize list, when an all-star cast from that club, led by Art Christensen, takes to the lanes and will be followed on successive nights by several other club and free-lance teams.

All that is necessary to enter is an average compiled from this year's bowling, either at a club or an independent outfit, and a handicap will be worked out to place all bowlers in the same bracket and give them a chance for winnings.

Either enter your name at the Penn Bowling Center, or call 9170.

FISHING—The rocking chair fishing strategist reports quite a number of good catches over the weekend, but the high water held down the wood attendance. Two trout, one 21-inch and the other an 18-inch brown, plus a beautiful 17½-inch native brook were reported.

Currently an island "aircraft carrier" for the axis, Sicily may become a stepping stone for the allied invasion of Europe. Apartment And Office Ransacked

Some time early Sunday afternoon the apartment of Miss Mina Uhdey, and the dental office of Dr. James E. Richards, in the Wetmore building, 209 Second avenue, were ransacked, according to a report made to the police department.

Lieut. Mike Evan, who is investigating, stated that in the Uhdey apartment considerable damage was caused by pulling locks and ruining moulding about the doors. The intruders evidently were not interested in anything excepting jewelry made of gold, the missing objects including an old gold watch, two gold rings and a past commander Knight Templar jewel. The outer door to the office of Dr. Richards was removed from the hinges, the intruders getting only as far as the reception room. An inventory showed that nothing was taken from the office.

Other dentists in the community were warned of the robbery by the police, who are of the opinion that the robbers may have been staged by a traveling gang of dental thieves who are reported to have been visiting other towns in the section.

Man Charged As Saboteur

Pittsburgh, May 10.—(P)—John G. Gethune, 41, of Erie, was indicted by a federal grand jury on a charge of sabotaging airplane parts in an Erie manufacturing firm where he was employed, it was disclosed today.

The incident was impounded until FBI agents arrested him at Barborton, O., where he was employed in another war plant, the FBI reported.

The incident charged that on or about March 13 Bethune reduced the temperature on an hydraulic press, which resulted in the destruction of certain mounts used in the manufacture of anti-fibrators for planes.

Bethune is the father of four children.

He was born in Warren county.

It was the first sabotage action of the war brought in western Pennsylvania. The law provides a penalty up to 30 years in prison or a $10,000 fine.

Bill Is Under Way

every taxpayer, wiping out an estimated $6,800,000 in assets upon which the treasury would be expected to collect eventually. This compares with $7,200,000,000 that would be eliminated by the house-approved bill, which would cancel only the first 19 per cent of 1942 tax levies and place only those who fall within that category on a current payment basis.

It would be much better, George argued, to cancel 75 per cent of everybody's liability for 1942 taxes, put them on a current basis as to their 1943 bills and let them pay the 25 per cent owing from the 1942 in the course of the next two years.

That would give the treasury an automatic 12 1/2 per cent increase in its receipts in the critical war period, he said, indicating his belief such a solution might obviate any necessity of trying to squeeze an additional $16,000,000,000 out of the tax turnip in the immediate future.

Governor Martin said in a statement he was "very much pleased over the work of the legislature" but Democratic leaders in closing bursts of oratory voiced opposite views.

Unofficial statistics on the session, which began Jan. 5, listed 1,112 bills introduced in the house and 635 in the senate, of which 493 were sent to Governor Martin. The chief executive signed 122 up to May 8 and vetoed three, while 369 remained to be acted upon during the next 30 days.

The session, briefest in a decade, cost $1,700,000.

"We apologize to Mr. (John L.) Lewis and to the nation for our part in placing x x x Doane Waring in office. It has been with mixed emotions of shame and disgust that we have witnessed this attack by Commander Waring on labor's cause for twenty-six years."

Waring, in a discussion of the home front situation Thursday night at Indianapolis, said Lewis' "no trespassing" order to members of the United Mine Workers was "the sorriest spectacle that a nation at war ever faced."

The resolution passed by the South Ford post was released late Friday. Waring termed it "a disgrace to the American Legion and a reflection upon the Pennsylvania post," adding "their criticism of me means nothing."

The approval of my statement by Legionnaires all over the country as well as the public, vindicates my stand," Waring said.

It's a Question of QUALITY

When Charles E. Metzger opened this store in 1896, his basic concept was one of Quality. When William W. Wright began his retail career in a crossroads store in West Virginia in 1878, he had the same idea. We have it today.

Quality still exists. Make no mistake about that. In spite of the influx of stores geared down to a price, you can still buy merchandise built up to a standard. You can buy it in Warren. You can buy it at Metzger-Wright's.

We are in the midst of war. Many types of goods are scarce. Some may grow scarcer. Under these conditions, doesn't it seem common sense to buy the BEST merchandise you can get?

Take shoes, for instance. You may buy only three pairs per year for each member of your family. This being the case, isn't it wise to buy the BEST three pairs of shoes you can get? Rather than the cheapest or the flashiest.

So, all along the line. So, with apparel, hosiery, rugs, chinaware. So, with everything you wear or use. War is teaching us much about the real values in our lives. It is teaching us to reject the momentary appeal in favor of the enduring usefulness. Americans, in brief, are re-learning the lesson of Quality.

Our 47th Anniversary Sale---symbol of our One-ness with the community---opens Wednesday at 8:47. We do not claim "the greatest values in a century." We do not hurl epithets or toy with adjectives. We offer you quality goods at worthwhile prices.

We do not urge you to overbuy during the 47th Anniversary Sale. That is against your interest as well as ours. We ask you to buy carefully, intelligently, shrewdly; for long service; for wartime attractiveness. We have prepared many special offerings at interesting prices on every floor and in every department.

It's a good time to buy---for Quality's sake!
